

EMBRYOLOGY SPIRIT & ESSENCE

Implications & applications for touch and movement modalities

29th of April - 1st of May 2016
Fri-Sun /9AM-5PM each day

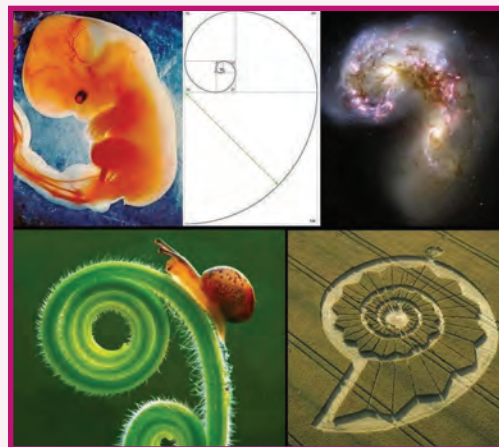

What is body? This 3-day workshop covers the basic principles of development of a human embryo from conception to week four. The unfolding of human form in space and time is amazing and can be understood without knowledge of genetics. We will explore the conditioned and unconditioned forces that shape our coming into being, and into form and function. All the major structures that make a human being are present by the eighth week of gestation. We will focus on the early transmutative stages of our development and its significance in healing potential.

Topics include and are not limited to: conception, pre and post implantation growth, early arising and development of the three midlines, central nervous system, and the heart.

Through experiential exercises with and without touch, movement explorations, PowerPoint presentations, and discussions we will open to these mysteries that are present and alive within us; creating us in every moment; maintaining health, balance, and evolving us as an embodied living consciousness. Wholeness is always here.

Prior knowledge of embryology is not required; diagrams, illustrations and a summary will be available.
